The Acadia Online Survey System was designed by Acadia University to host surveys and collect useable data. Once registered on this system, surveys become a resource that serves many purposes, such as getting feedback or evaluation.

How are Acadia Professors using it?

Professors are using the Survey System to do marketing research because it shows an increase in the number of responses compared to paper surveys. Tabulation of data is easy and allows the quick creation of charts and graphs for reports.

Faculty are using the survey system to get feedback from students on their teaching, as well as getting their students to use it to do peer evaluations when critiquing group presentations.
